After sharing our experiences of the loss of our wives with the community on social media many were inspired. This sharing was therapeutic for us. So Rodney said, "Let's share this with the world, and write a book." We wrote about our pain and the lessons found within that pain and we wanted to help the people. Our words began to make others reflect on their lives with an overwhelming response. And with every thought we shared, and every word we wrote, allowed us feel so much better in helping others get through their pain, and bear witness to what they have in their spouse, and family, because we are an example that you could lose them at any moment. This book is designed to assist anyone that has lost a spouse and most importantly serve as a wake up message to those that are currently married or thinking about getting married to constantly work on an attitude of gratitude. We pray this book inspires in women a greater desire to return to a high level of morality and Godliness. The world is in the condition it is in because of the mistreatment of women and we are committed to lifting up the standard for women world wide. This small step just might help.
