How you broke my heart Noel Dignity

The following poems describe a different set of emotions between the most positive and negative, although all express the deep core of a loving heart. We could call them love poems, because the purpose is to enchant a lost lover thought the release of the emotions expressed deeply in the soul and awake her conscience about them.

The majority of the poems are written in English, although it's possible to find also poems in other languages, such as Spanish, Portuguese, French and Latin. But, sometimes, some of these languages were mixed in the same poem, meaning that it can be better expressed according to the pronunciation of each of these languages.

The poems have been written as if the author was talking with his lover, what allows the reader to follow a very complete interpretation of the emotions while imagining the proper scenery for them.
